FALL RIVER UNDER MARTIAL LAW AS FIRE RUINS COOL

Damage To Business District Is Estimated At $25,000,000

POPULATION STUNNED

Men, Women and Children Mill About Debris In A Haze

By William A. Considine
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent
FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 3.—Martial law was in effect in fire-swept Fall River today.

Dead lines were established by 600 armed militiamen and 60 State troopers around a mile square area in which sixty-five buildings, large and small were destroyed in an all-night conflagration which was finally under control after causing damage estimated at $25,000,000. Ten firemen were seriously injured.

All visitors were barred. Policing arrangements were in charge of Mayor W. Parry Monks.

A majority of the population of 102,000 men, women and children were on the streets, hundreds milling about the police lines thrown up in the business district fire area.

Relief agencies were at work caring for the scores of injured and those in need of food and shelter.

Six banks damaged by flames were under heavy guard. In their fireproof vaults rested currency and valuable papers.

Twenty-five of the city's principal buildings were in ruins in an area bounded by High Bank, Annawan and Darbee streets. These included three hotels, two theatres, a club, a news paper plant and a dozen business blocks and mills. Among the mills damaged were the Pocasset, the Union Mill and the Troy Chimney Company's mill.

The fire which started in the abandoned No. 1 mill of the Pocasset Manufacturing Company on Pocasset street, swept with startling rapidity all before it, and it was not until 2:30 o'clock this morning that it was finally under control, eight hours after the first alarm had been sounded.

Ice sheeted and weary firemen from Massachusetts and Rhode Island cities and towns worked in the ruins. The national guardsmen on duty were commanded by Colonel Harry A. Skinner. The State Police were under personal command of Brigadier General Alfred F. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety.

The fire, which raged from 6:30 o'clock last evening until it was placed under control at 3 a. m. today, recalled the million dollar fire here twelve years ago.

Many times during the hectic night the residential district was threatened as sparks and fire brands fell on roofs.

Scores of families fled to the streets in the near-zero tenperature carrying movable belongings. Bethel Synagogue on Banks street was destroyed and a hundred families living in the vicinity of the blazing edifice left their homes.

There were many homeless men, women and children to care for after the first excitement of the conflagration subsided. A majority of these lived on Bedford street. Their homes were in apartments above small stores. They were cared for in neighboring homes or in public buildings. The newspaper plants ruined were the Fall River Independent and the Fall River Herald-News. The plant of the other newspaper, the Globe, was also badly damaged.

Party Is Given In Honor Of Little Dorothy Lerman

One of the happiest parties of the season was held at 307 Washington street, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lerman giving the affair in honor of their daughter Dorothy.

Many games were played during the evening, among them being: Pinnings the tail on the donkey, peanut hunt, etc. The winners of the prizes were: Phyllis Wiesner, Charlotte Abbott, Noma Johnson and Thelma Weik.

The table was adorned with many delicacies, among them being a large birthday cake, on which were placed nine candles. Many songs were enjoyed before refreshments were served. Dorothy received many nice gifts. Those present were: Janice Cole, Charlotte Abbott, Anna Eastlack, Rebecca Silber, Selma Harris, Lillian Rodgers, Irene Baxter, Phyllis Wiesner, Edith Litto, Mary Schiffer, Rosemary Schiffer, Noma Johnson, Mildred Miller, Thelma and Gladys Weik, Dorothy Lerman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lerman.

GRAB YOUR WOOLENS AND EARMUFFS; MORE REAL WINTER IS PROMISED

Groundhog Saw His Shadow and More Snow and Sleet Are Promised During the Next Six Weeks

By P. L. Smith
(L. N. S. Special Correspondent)

Weather Works, Gobbler's Knob, Janoe Ridge, Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 3.—Grab your woollens, find your earmuffs, patch your arctics and get ready to shiver. The groundhog has seen his shadow and six additional weeks of snow, sleet, sub-zero temperatures, ice and all the what-nots that go to make up a rip-snorting winter, in this northern clime, are on the way. The groundhog has decreed it; his disciples have recorded it. So note it be.

The adumbrage was cast at 10 o'clock yesterday on the snow clad slopes of Gobbler's Knob at the very door of the weather works, and it was a full-on shadow, one that gave forth its chilly portent seconds before the seer of seers, his supreme majesty the woodchuck, made his official prognostication.

A dozen faithful disciples of the sacred saw the silhouette cast, measured it from its multitudinous angles, photographed it for the doubting and initiated and made full record of the verbal forecast for the official archives of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club. All morning long those dozen disciples, including the official shadow-grapher, the mixologists, interpreters and weather scouts, waited the appearance of the weather wizard. The minute hand of the big weather works clock had almost reached the 10 mark when the seer himself emerged from headquarters, alert and keen-eyed, plump and sleek, brisk and business-like despite his long hibernation.

The weather monarch trotted briskly to the casting box, faced due north, pointed his caudal appendage at the Punxsutawney meridian, and after a few seconds of silence, said:

"There she is boys, and you can see for yourself that it's a dandy. Notice that cupidineer cut-off on the longitudinal cast just about my midriff. See! Make careful record of that circumgratory curve delineated by my whiskers. Sleet! And that aurora borealis angle of the bimodal divergence, Zero and how!!! There's the boss adumbration of all time. Gosh, it makes me chilly to look at it. Work fast, boys, I've got my work cut out for me, and I'll have to get to it."

Satisfied that a complete record of the official silhouette had been made, he jumped from the casting box.

And with a flippancy flap of his tail he trotted briskly into headquarters and slammed the door.

EXPECT REPORT SOON ON COAL-IRON POLICE

Entire Future of The Practice Depends Upon Investigator's Findings

By William B. Brown
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 3.—Upon the report which Philip S. Moyer, deputy attorney general, makes within a few days to Governor John S. Fisher may depend the future of the so-called coal and iron police in the bituminous and anthracite fields of Pennsylvania.

Moyer said today that his report, now nearing completion, will include his findings on 113 charges made against the police by officials of the United Mine Workers, which he secretly was assigned to investigate.

These private police have been the controversial vortex about which has raged many of the most bitter differences of the operators and miners and have been partly responsible for the attention now focused on conditions in Western Pennsylvania coal fields.

Meanwhile, the Governor's office admits that somewhere in the state more than two thousand of these policemen, armed with the authority of the Commonwealth and the right to wear a uniform, are left to their own devices.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—One bandit was wounded in the arm and escaped while his three alleged companions were captured by detectives after a pistol battle in Frankford today, when cornered following a $13,000 hold-up.

Frank Ross, 64 year old bank messenger, was the one deprived of the sum. Ross is a messenger for the Colonial Trust Company's branch on Lehigh avenue. Ross was beaten over the head with pistols as he waited for another messenger to deliver a payroll to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company branch office on Germantown avenue.

The men gave their names as: Joseph Matge, 39; Joseph Thomas, 29; and Andrew Helcizk, 30. They are charged with carrying concealed deadly weapons, highway robbery, and intent to kill.

WAR LEADER BURIED

Earl Haig (above), Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies in France during the World War, was buried today with stirring pageantry.

GREAT BRITAIN PAYS TRIBUTE TO HAIG

Stirring Pageantry Parallels Pomp of The Middle Ages

PRINCE OF WALES LEADS

By Harry R. Flory
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 3.—With stirring pageantry paralleling the pomp of the Middle Ages, Great Britain united today to pay a national tribute to Westminster Abbey to Douglas Earl Haig, British commander during the World War and one of Britain's outstanding soldiers.

In a flash of blazing colors, a gigantic procession followed the gun-carriage on which Haig's body was transferred from St. Columbus' Church to the Abbey.

Leading the procession were the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry, the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught, and a score of the highest military and naval officials and representatives of all branches of the British and Allied armies.

The procession passed slowly through streets lined three deep with reverentially hatless Britons, most of whom wore "Haig poppies" as a further sign of reverence for the dead field marshal.

Almost all the shops along the route were closed and windows were draped in mourning.

At 12:30 o'clock, the procession arrived at Westminster Abbey and as the mourners took their places for the ceremony, the sombre interior of the Cathedral was transformed into a blaze of brilliance.

So that Britons throughout the entire world might hear the tribute to Earl Haig, the impressive services were broadcast over a huge radio hook-up.

The ceremony was over at 1:30 o'clock, the procession reformed and the march was slowly made to Waterloo Station. There the body was put on a train for Scotland, where Earl Haig will be buried.

The flag over the German embassy was put at half mast in tribute to the memory of the famous soldier.

The Hungarian military attaché placed a wreath of poppies upon the coffin in behalf of the Hungarian Army.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE DESTROYS BARN NEAR HULMEVILLE

Tenant Claims That He Had Leased It To Another

FIND ALLEGED LIQUOR

Fire Had Gained Much Headway Before Firemen Arrived

Thomas Whitehead, tenant on the property where the barn was destroyed by fire last night was today held under $1,000 bail at Doylestown, for a further hearing next Monday night on the charge of manufacturing and possessing intoxicating liquor.

Another Bucks County barn was totally destroyed by fire last evening, when one on the property of Arthur Zimmerman, Hulmeville - Parkland Road, in Middletown township, became ignited.

The tenant was Thomas Whitehead, who said that he in turn had let it to another individual, whose name was not divulged. Following the fire there was found much paraphernalia in a small out-building, which is thought to have been used in the making of liquor. A small amount of supposed liquor was found, as well as utensils such as bottles, corks, strainers, kettles, dippers, cartons, cans, etc.

The blaze, which was at about eight o'clock, is thought to have started in the upper portion of the structure. Firemen from the Langhorne and South Langhorne companies were called, quickly responding. The fire had gained such headway however, that the entire barn was destroyed, making a loss of $3,000. A small bungalow on the property as well as the out-building where the utensils were found, were saved. It was stated by the owner that the place is not insured.

Word was later sent to the State Police, located at Doylestown, in reference to the alleged liquor and other material found on the premises, and this was taken to the county seat late last night.

The owner claimed he knew nothing of the material found in the out-building. He will go to Doylestown today to confer with the district attorney.

Miss Yates Takes Part In Trenton Water Pageant

Miss Alice Yates, of Walnut street, took part in the water pageant, "A Night in Arabia," which was given in the pool of the Young Women's Christian Association, Trenton, by the health education department, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Miss Dorothy Havener had charge of the arrangements for the pageant.

The theme of the pageant centers around an Arabian nobleman, who, after a day's travel through the desert, is entertained by a group of swimmers. The swimmers are endeavoring to receive jewels which the leader will give as a reward. Finally, after several groups appear, his highness' attention is directed toward a lovely mermaid, who, unnoticed, enters the pool swimming under water. By her charm and grace, the mermaid receives the jewels.

A group of swimmers skilled in the means of saving life in the water, gave a demonstration of their methods. Then a group of divers entered the pool, and gave an exhibition of fancy diving. Miss Yates took part in both groups.

The water pageant was a splendid entertainment, a bit out of the ordinary, and was well patronized by the public.

PROGRESS VS. SENTIMENT

When the gates of the great hydro-electric power dam in the Susquehanna river at Conowingo, Md., were closed, old villages and farmhouses, abandoned by their owners, disappeared slowly beneath the rising waters of the river. In two days the closing of the dam transformed a broad valley, through which the Susquehanna coursed, into a great lake more than a mile wide and several miles long.

No tragedy overwhelmed those who watched as the water overwhelmed their homes and farms. All had been compensated for their loss and no one was made homeless. Yet who can doubt that they were moved by regret and sadness? For, all unconsciously, perhaps, they found in the sight of the Susquehanna waters some hint of the transience of life itself, and were not they watching the passing of "home" where they and many of their ancestors had found what life was?

Quite commonplace. Nothing that was baronial or manorial, nothing that was imposing or would count for historians and recorders; but still those humble abodes were "homes."

The parting was made doubly hard for it meant no returning. For these modern Acadians there can be no home-coming to the old homestead, to the old farm or to the little old home town. Deep will be the despair of some prodigal son returning to gaze upon a broad expanse of water where once his ancestral home had nestled under the hill.

Here is drama written by engineers who do not deal in sentiments, and here is tragedy that is the fruit of industrial progress that has no direct traffic with pensiveness. A few are made to suffer that millions may be made more comfortable and happy. It is the way of this civilization.

THE SUCKER CROP

Barnum said it, and the swelling list of victims of stock swindlers proves it. The executive committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World estimates that profits taken by fake stock vendors during the past year aggregated $600,000,000. There may be uncertainty as to whether the large number of suckers, thus evidenced is due to the prevalence of fraud or whether the prevalence of fraud is due to the inviting number of suckers, but there is certainty that the supply of fraud and the demand for it are too great.

When the sucker goes after easy money, the fraudulent go after him and get it. It is the desire to reap large profits on small investment that makes the average easy mark so glib when the glib salesman of fake stock is hawking his wares. As long as such desire and glibility combine to make the game of the fraudulent easy, the promoters of fake stock schemes will continue to take their toll. The case is one in which the victim helps in his own undoing, and the protection that can be given him depends, at least partially, on his willingness to heed the warning against biting tempting bait.

Some persons work the hardest when they are trying to work some body else.

Every man is convinced that he has enough moral stamina to stand prosperity.

Spectacular Price Reductions February Sale OF FURNITURE

We are determined to make this sale a record-breaker for values. When you compare the furniture—the extremely beautiful designs, the artistic finish and the quality—with the low prices, you will wonder how we can offer so much value for the money. Fortunate purchases on our part is the reason. When we buy low, we sell low. And besides that, we are running on a much smaller margin of profit to insure quick sales.

WEST PA. BASKETBALL IN HEALTHY CONDITION

By Regis Curran
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 3.—Basketball is in a healthier condition in Western Pennsylvania today than at any other time in the past decade, in the opinion of sports observers here.

This optimistic outlook is taken despite the fact that the territory is without the presence of high-class teams to meet the greatest professional teams of the country.

The reason, particularly in Pittsburgh, is that a number of fast semi-pro teams have been organized, the membership of these being composed of former college stars and "kids" who have outgrown amateur company. Within a year, or two at the most, the critics predict that the present teams will have developed into better machines than Pittsburgh has yet had in its basketball history.

From the wealth of material, and providing the players "stick," the critics expect several teams to be capable of coping with the best professional teams.

Some of the basketball cream developed in metropolitan Pittsburgh includes: McKeesport Cyclers, Duquesne Lafayettees, Goose Goslings, Enoch Rauchs and Goldenson Furnitures. Their rosters include former members of teams at Penn State, Westminster, Duquesne, Pitt and other colleges and fellows who started in the alleys, continued to play in the gymnasiums, lyceums and athletic clubs while they worked in mills and factories.

Similar conditions are said to exist in other Western Pennsylvania cities only on a smaller scale than here. The Five Horsemen of Uniontown, a group of young fellows who leaped into the limelight with victories over the leading quintets last year, including the Morrays who have disbanded.

The last big organization around this district was the Central Professional League, which passed away in death in the middle of last season after a short existence of a season and a half. It was considered only slightly below the American Professional League in class. Financial losses caused the league to disband.

There are many who believe that a similar league, with entries from Western Pennsylvania towns only, will be organized within a year or two. The chief obstacle is the financial problem, and this can be handled, it is believed, by the erection of halls with greater seating capacities, thereby obtaining a profit for the hall owners, suitable salaries for players and reasonable prices for spectators.

Expect Report Soon On Coal-Iron Police

sources, unattached to any command. The records in the Governor's office show that 3,982 commissions have been issued to these special police. A questionnaire mailed secretly by the Governor's office to eighty-six coal companies which employ coal and iron police accounted for only 1,589 men regularly employed. Answers to the questionnaires were compiled in November, and since that time an effort has been made to locate some of the surplus 2,393 men, but there has been little success, the Governor's office admits.

Each policeman originally was commissioned for three years. The commissions may be revoked only after formal charges have been made against the holder. Coal companies have been discharging the men at will, some after serious charges have been brought against them, but no formal charges against the men were filed in Harrisburg.

As a result the men discharged, still in possession of their state commissions, became free agents, unattached and under no command.

Citing specifically the alleged laxity which had attended employment of the coal and iron police, records in the Governor's office showed that the Pittsburgh Coal Company employed 119 special officers on Nov. 18, but on that date the company had a total of 225 commissions listed. The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation reported 54 men actually employed but the records charged them with 156.

The Governor said his office is depending on the co-operation of the coal operators to help keep a record of discharged employees and whenever necessary to file charges which will result in revocation of the commission.

The present situation, the Governor said, can be remedied only by specific legislation which will result in a general tightening of the regulations governing employment and dismissal of the policemen.

The coal and iron police system is an outgrowth of civil war turmoil. With the nation dependent on Pennsylvania coal and iron, men unable to go to the front were commissioned to protect sources of supply and transportation. The system was introduced in 1865, as railroad police, and amended regulations a year later designated them to guard all coal and iron workings.

In the years following the Civil War there was no attempt to curtail issuance of the commissions, until the administration of Gifford Pinchot. Governor Pinchot, charging that many of the men were "little better than hired thugs," caused a general tightening up in issuance of commissions.

LEAP YEAR SOCIAL

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church held a Leap Year Social last evening. The young ladies extended the invitation to the young men and had the privilege of going and bringing their escorts to the social. There were about forty present and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Refreshments were served.
